I strongly recommend everyone who browse the web and get excited to open the hydroponics farms and eager to earn the returns in 2 years and huge profits, then you are not aware of the actual thing and you are mostly likely to fail...To get into reality just attend the Seminar organised by City Greens and every penny you pay for the seminar is worth it. Do talk to them if you are beginner in this field before you invest anything.

I attended their 3 day commercial training program in Ahmedabad and it totally worth the money and time. Gaurav Narang has in depth knowledge of Hydroponic market in India and he presented the real picture in front of us.

I have attended many company seminars in the past, but City Greens operate a little differently, they work at the university level, but different companies that work in the same field work at the nursery level. The trainers are quite aware of this technique. I am very much satisfied after watching the programs of this company. And I hope that if I ever open my farm, this company will support me completely
